

EDITOR NEWETT MAKES RETRACTION ON STAND LATE THIS AFTERNOON

STARTLING TURN TAKEN IN ROOSEVELT LIBEL SUIT WHEN DEFENDANT VIRTUALLY ADMITS HE WAS MIS-TAKEN.

FURTHER TESTIMONY

Expected That Plaintiff's Side of Case Would Be Completed Late Today—Loeb and Emilen Roosevelt Testify.

Bulletin, Marquette, Mich., May 31.—Editor George A. Newett took the witness stand for the defense in the Roosevelt libel suit late this afternoon and virtually retracted the statement which he published in the Ishpeming Iron Ore in which he charged Colonel Roosevelt with being a drunkard. He admitted that he was wrong in his statements.

The plaintiff, Col. Roosevelt, then requested the court to instruct the jury to give him the verdict with a nominal damage.

Bulletin, Marquette, Mich., May 31.—A sudden termination of the suit of Theodore Roosevelt against George Newett, who charged him with drunkenness, was persistently rumored in court at this afternoon's session. Counsel on neither side would discuss the rumor.

It was expected that the plaintiff's side of the case would be completed today. Much of the testimony was repetition.

To the surprise of everybody the examination was very brief. It was announced that an afternoon session of court would be held.

"What has been your association with Mr. Roosevelt?" asked Attorney Pound for the plaintiff of Emilen Roosevelt.

"Very intimate. I have been with him for two weeks at a time. When we were boys we lived near each other. Later I was with him on hunting trips. I was with him when he was sworn in as president at Washington and also when he took the oath of office. I have been with him since President McKinley. I made trips with him in the Mayflower, the government boat placed at his service. I have been in a position to know every detail of his public and his private life."

"What has been your observation through your sense of smell and sight as to whether he was a drinking man?"

"My observation was that he is not a drinker."

"Has he ever been under the influence of liquor?"

"Never was so far as I observed. I have seen his habit in reference to alcohol."

"He doesn't use it?"

"The witness was excused without cross examination."

Loeb, collector of customs of the port of New York testified that he first met Colonel Roosevelt when the latter became governor of New York. During the seven and one half years of the Roosevelt administration, Loeb said, he was associated with the president first as assistant secretary to him and later as his secretary.

Mr. Loeb said he saw Colonel Roosevelt president every day including holidays.

"I was in touch with him during all his working hours from 9 a. m. till midnight," said the witness.

"To what extent did he indulge in intoxicants?"

"He was as temperate as any man I ever saw."

"What can you say as to his drinking wine on his trips?"

"Occasionally he took a little wine on advice of Dr. Rixey."

"Did you ever perceive the odor of liquor on his breath?"

"Never. About state dinners at the White House, Mr. Loeb said: 'I attended these dinners because they were under my charge. Colonel Roosevelt usually drank a little champagne. How many glasses did he drink. One or two glasses?'"

BURLESON'S REPORT SHOWS NO SURPLUS; HITCHCOCK BLAMED

Special Investigation of Postal Affairs Shows That Former Postmaster General Used Unjustifiable Methods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, May 31.—Postmaster General Burleson today made public the report of a separate investigation into the financial affairs of the postal service that during former postmaster general Hitchcock's administration the service did not become self supporting, as had been stated but that in 1911 there actually was a deficit of $1,755,323.

The report charges that an apparent surplus was attained by unjustifiable methods of bookkeeping and that the efficiency of the postal service was sacrificed to a policy of false economy, and that the showing of such material may be made a foundation for complaints against the service.

Mr. Hitchcock during his administration and in his report claimed that in the year 1909 a deficiency of approximately $1,750,000 had entirely been eliminated and that in the fiscal year 1911 a surplus more than $200,000 was attained. The report of the Burleson investigation shows that Mr. Burleson says that at no time has there been a legitimate surplus in the postal revenues since 1883 and that the postal department under Mr. Hitchcock's administration in 1911 actually showed a deficit of more than $750,000.

In that connection the report says: "It is pointed out by the committee that the public financial report to the department stated that the revenue and cost of the service on a disallowance and therefore incomparable basis revenues of the postal service are almost entirely collections in cash and consequently relate properly to the calendar year for which the report is made but the committee has shown that the practice to compare has been the practice to compare the fiscal year with the calendar year, less of obligations incurred during that year but not to be paid until the succeeding year."

Just before President Wilson took office, the report says Mr. Hitchcock filled long standing vacancies, made postponed promotions and assumed the duties of the department for a long term in such a way as to show the new administration with a tremendous increased expense during the months, if not years to come. More than 100 rural routes were authorized in 1912. The first part of the report of the postal service for 1912 purports to show that there was a deficiency of $1,755,323, but that sum the investigators say was under estimated nearly $500,000. Delay of promotions and the filling of vacancies that lost salaries may not be received the report says caused dissatisfaction among the employees and a lower standard of efficiency. Many employees were transferred from one department to another of the postal service. Many certifications to the civil service commission that such positions could not be filled by promotion were unjustifiable.

David O. Roper, Joseph Stewart, A. M. Dockery and Joseph I. Baker, the four assistant postmaster generals and Merrill O. Champe, chief clerk of the department made this survey and signed the report.

Under the jurisdictional requisites stated, the supreme court found that the government committed the following jurisdictional errors:—

First—No sufficient notice of the hearing was given.

Second—The cause assigned for the removal was not within the statute.

Third—Fair opportunity was not afforded Mr. Ekern to present his case.

Fourth—The evidence produced, in no fair view of it, made a case against Mr. Ekern within the statute.

The court holds with Ekern's attorneys in the opinion that the terms "political committee" and "manager of a political campaign" as used in the statute referred to a committee or political party or for a personal manager of political party or person, and campaign such as would be required under the corrupt practices act to file. Herman L. Ekern evidenced his assent to the decision of the supreme court by the filing of a petition to many callers who extended their congratulations. He refused to make any statement saying, "The supreme court has said it all."

John A. Ward, an attorney, said, "We have won on every point." Gov. McGovern declined to make any comment.

TO HOLD A HEARING COMPENSATION BILL

Senate Corporation Committee Will Conduct Hearing on Tuesday—Recommended Increased Salary for Circuit Judges.

Madison, Wis., May 31.—The workmen's compensation bill which has just passed the assembly, which makes important changes in the present act, chief of which is abolition of the compulsory negligence defense, will have a hearing before the senate committee on corporations Tuesday afternoon.

As it has the approval of the industrial commission, opposition is not expected. The bill will probably be heard on Tuesday.

The assembly committee on judiciary has favorably recommended the bill to increase the salaries of circuit judges from $5,000 to $6,000 annually.

Assemblyman Flood of La Crosse said the bill will probably be heard on Tuesday.

The bill passed the senate with little trouble, but the vote in the house is expected to be close.

DECISION FOR EKERN IN M'GOVERN FIGHT

STATE SUPREME COURT TODAY RULES IN FAVOR OF INSURANCE COMMISSIONER IN REMOVAL CASE.

GOVERNOR IN ERROR

Gave No Sufficient Notice of Hearing, Lacked Legal Cause, And Gave No Fair Opportunity For Defense.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, May 31.—The state supreme court today ruled in favor of state insurance commissioner, Herman L. Ekern in the suit in which Gov. Frank J. McGovern sought to remove him from office.

Gov. McGovern sought to remove insurance commissioner Ekern for alleged malfeasance in office and went so far as to have a warrant of public property, W. L. Bismarck and two deputy sheriffs endeavor to remove the commissioner by force. This attempt was frustrated by the issuance of an injunction by circuit judge H. R. Stevens of Dane County.

Judge Stevens decided against forcible removal by the governor, but contended that the chief executive had the power to remove an appointive official.

A truce was agreed to pending an opinion of the supreme court.

The high court in ruling for the plaintiff Ekern made these conclusions:—

Under the jurisdictional requisites stated, the supreme court found that the government committed the following jurisdictional errors:—

First—No sufficient notice of the hearing was given.

Second—The cause assigned for the removal was not within the statute.

Third—Fair opportunity was not afforded Mr. Ekern to present his case.

Fourth—The evidence produced, in no fair view of it, made a case against Mr. Ekern within the statute.

The court holds with Ekern's attorneys in the opinion that the terms "political committee" and "manager of a political campaign" as used in the statute referred to a committee or political party or for a personal manager of political party or person, and campaign such as would be required under the corrupt practices act to file. Herman L. Ekern evidenced his assent to the decision of the supreme court by the filing of a petition to many callers who extended their congratulations. BRICK YARD RUINED BY FIRE LAST NIGHT

Fire in Main Buildings in Brick Yard Does $5,000 Damage—Caught From Boiler.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Edgerton, May 31.—Fire originated last night, thought to have originated from the intense heat from the boiler, destroyed the main building of L. C. Whitte's brick yard and the flames spread so rapidly that nothing of any value was saved. The destruction of the building and the machinery caused a loss of about $5,000.

The fire started shortly before nine o'clock, just as the commencement exercises were in progress. When the department arrived, a great deal of damage had been done. The boiler and machinery were doomed and the men turned their attentions to saving other buildings.

The loss is estimated at about $5,000. The machinery being a great deal more valuable than the building, which was a light frame structure.

Several explosions, caused by oil occurred, which frightened many for a time, but these were only slight. About five years ago Mr. Whitte lost the building which stood in this same place and about a year ago the large oil house burned to the ground. It seemed that the heat under the boiler is too intense and dries the building so that it is more apt to catch fire than otherwise would be the case.

Stops Runaway—Despite chances of serious personal injury, Porter Johnson residing on Glen Street stopped a runaway horse belonging to E. R. Waslow in front of the Merchant and Machine bank this morning. Johnson caught the reins of the horse and although he was dragged along the brick pavement for twenty feet, hung on until the horse was stopped. The horse was in charge of Stanley Garbutt and became frightened at an automobile.

Will Deliver Address: The Rev. J. C. Hazen will deliver the commencement address at the graduation exercises of the Kankakee, Ill., high school, June 16.

The Professional Shopper.

There are in Janesville and other cities smart, up-and-doing women who are known as professional shoppers.

These women, who are known as professional shoppers, are employed by people who have not the time or ability to do their own shopping.

But we know it to be a fact that hundreds of women do their own shopping with a skill and far greater satisfaction simply because they are bright enough and energetic enough to do what the professional shopper does: Keep posted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, May 31.—The senate's investigation of the "numerous and insidious lobby" President Wilson charged was threatening the tariff bill will begin Monday morning at 10:30 by a committee composed of Senators Overman, Walsh, Cummins and Reed and Nelson. Mr. Overman will be chairman.

DANISH EXPLORER SOLVES PROBLEMS IN ARCTIC REGION

Knud Rasmussen Finds That So-Called Peary Channel Does Not Exist—Maps Unknown Territory.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Copenhagen, Denmark, May 31.—By his discovery that the so-called Peary Channel at the Northern end of Greenland does not exist, Knud Rasmussen, the young Danish explorer, has solved a problem of great importance to the geographical world.

Besides this, the explorer and his companions mapped the region connecting Greenland with Peary Land and made fresh discoveries of land which they baptized Christian X Land.

Additional details have been received here of the brilliant feats of the Danish expedition which has just terminated a scientific task that has attracted many explorers since.

Rasmussen is doing the coast of the interior of Greenland, proving that only unusual endurance and hardiness were required for successful exploration in those regions.

Knud Rasmussen started on his expedition on July 10, 1910, when he embarked with his companions on the schooner Motor and sailed from Copenhagen to the Melville coast in Northwestern Greenland.

Rasmussen was peculiarly well fitted for the task he had undertaken. He is a native of Greenland, having been born at Jacob's Harbor in 1879.

His father was a Danish clergyman, who was thoroughly acquainted with a number of Eskimo dialects, and his mother was a pure-blooded Eskimo.

Knud himself spoke Eskimo from his infancy and later studied the language philologically so that he knows it as well as perhaps better than any other person.

Knud Rasmussen has been through his life intensely interested in exploration, and as a youth undertook voyages in Scandinavia in the "Polaris" and later in the "Thetis" making scientific observations.

When this expedition reached the Greenland coast the explorer established a station there for the benefit of the Eskimo people.

The expedition was equipped with sufficient provisions to last six years, and it was part of Rasmussen's plan to establish a commercial depot near Cape York, on the northern side of Melville Bay, where there could be a number of Eskimo hunters and a number of Eskimo hunters and a number of Eskimo hunters.

According to the telegrams received from Thorsbavn in the Faroe Islands, Rasmussen had succeeded in carrying out these plans, but also the second part of his program, which included the ethnographical and ethnological exploration of the practically unknown regions of Northern Greenland.

Knud Rasmussen's intention was to map Melville Bay, to cross the glaciers of the inland icefields, to explore the "Peary Channel" and also Crocker Island, discovered by Peary in latitude 83° 30' N.

Mr. Freuchen, another Dane, was the principal companion of Rasmussen in his explorations and on his great sledge expedition across the Greenland continent, starting with him in the hope of deciding the existence of the "Peary Channel."

When Peary made his discoveries at the northern end of Greenland during his voyages in 1891-12 and 1895-96, he had lost his life in the ice.

During his voyage in 1898-1902 Peary reached the northern point of Peary Land in latitude 83° 30' N. which was the limit of Greenland proper. He and most of the Polar explorers who followed him believed Peary Land to be an island separated from the continent by Independence Bay and "Peary Channel."

Some doubt still existed as to this, and other explorers made efforts to determine the facts. Mr. Koch, of the Danish expedition, reached Cape Bridgman in 1907, following up Peary's explorations. In the meantime, however, the Danes, Mylius Erichsen, Hoegh, Hagen and Brondsted had lost their lives in trying to establish the existence of a non-existence of the "Peary Channel."

Binar Mikkelson also tried to penetrate the region while he was searching for the facts of this question. He and his party were killed by the ice.

The news of Knud Rasmussen's discovery was settled once for all this much debated question.

BECOMES GUARDIAN OF FOUR EUNUCHS

Dutch Minister at Tangier Finds Himself in Strange Predicament—Fears Giving Offense.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Tangier, Morocco, May 31.—Because of a diplomatic unwillingness to offend Mohammedan prejudices, the Dutch minister here finds himself the embarrassed guardian and protector of four eunuchs. The eunuchs were of the household of ex-Sultan Moulay Hafid, but becoming discontented with his treatment of them, they quickly packed up and left up and down.

Having heard that the foreign legation premises were foreign territory, they got into the garden of the Dutch legation, and there secure by reason of the walls and diplomatic inviolability, they asked to be Minister before whom they pronounced the sacred formula which obliges every man in Mussulman countries to grant hospitality and protection.

Thus the Chevalier de Rappard, the Netherlands Minister, became, according to the traditions of the Koran, the host and protector of these four eunuchs. He had to provide them with lodging and food and defend them against their enemies. They became by the same rules members of his household and must serve him to the best of their ability. The diplomat is placed in a curious quandary, and has consulted the Moroccan Government as to the best course for him to take. Meanwhile he is giving shelter to the eunuchs, who profess a desire to spend their lives in his service.

MILITANT TACTICS OF SUFFRAGETTES BITTERLY ASSAILED

'Crash of Broken Window' Heard Across Atlantic, Heard With Disastrous Results, Rads Appeal.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, May 31.—"The crash of broken windows in London has been heard across the Atlantic with disastrous results," reads an appeal for worldwide "constitutional agitation" for woman suffrage, issued by the United States Women's Suffrage Societies. The appeal sets forth that many letters of protest against the strenuous militancy of the English sisterhood have poured into headquarters from across the seas.

The actions of the militants are hurting the cause all over the world, is the burden of these protests, according to the appeal. Most of the protests come from America and the reports of officers, the calling of the roll of delegates, the election of delegates to the national convention made up the body of business brought before the meeting. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with. President Arle called the delegates to order and the Rev. Joseph Chalmers gave the invocation.

President Arle Re-elected.—President W. G. Arle of Sturgeon Bay was re-elected to his position by a unanimous vote. Secretary being instructed to cast such ballot as there were no other candidates nominated. George Hiller was elected vice president to succeed Miss Edna K. Fuller of Marquette. Mrs. J. B. Larson, E. L. Demarest of Wausau, was re-elected secretary of the Association. G. C. Granger of Sheboygan Falls to the position of treasurer, and W. W. Moore of Arabong, state organizer, was also re-elected. A. H. Bailey of Janesville, Rollenbeck of Beaver Dam, were named members of the executive committee. George Hiller of Sheboygan was the retiring member. All the officers elected made brief speeches thanking the convention for the honors bestowed upon them.

Green Bay Gets Convention.—Green Bay was chosen as the convention city for next year. The rival claimants for the privilege being Grand Rapids, Edgerton, and Menominee. Green Bay received fifty-four votes, Grand Rapids 17, Edgerton 43. Menominee 1. The Commercial Club of Green Bay, through one of the rural carriers to whom it extended a formal invitation to the association, to hold its convention in that city. The association of rural carriers believed that place was entitled to the convention because the south and eastern parts of the state had been favored in former years, but not the central part of the state. Green Bay set forth the untold benefits of the convention, its peculiar advantages and the Stout Institute good fishing and boating, and the finest inland asylum in the state were the inducements held forth by Menominee.

Debate Stamp Question.—Considerable debate was aroused by the proposal of association that the delegates to the association, the Rural Letter Carriers' Association, to the national convention be instructed to introduce a resolution requesting the postmaster general for an order that the first class postage be properly stamped before being placed in the mail. Inspector Esch stated that the object was impossible of accomplishment, and the proposal would not be entertained. The department for a moment as it would be a violation of the provisions of the service. Under some circumstances it would result in a hardship to the farmer who must send a letter at once but is not provided with stamps. The author of the motion argued that the farmer must be accustomed themselves to the proposed ruling and that as the result of having a supply of stamps on hand, more letters would be written. The motion was tabled. The association was so divided that a ruling vote had to be called for.

Badge is Endorsed.—A resolution of the association recommending the adoption of a distinctive badge for rural mail carriers to be worn while they are on duty was adopted after considerable discussion. The motion was referred in opposition. Inspector Esch spoke in favor of the proposal and said that it might forestall the postal department requiring the carriers to wear a badge. The motion was adopted. The badge would enable them to recognize one another when on their way to conventions and identify them to strangers on the road.

Remember Dead.—The Wisconsin Rural Letter Carriers will honor the departed soldiers and their own dead at their next state convention by devoting one hour to their tribute through the adoption of a resolution to that effect, proposed by a carrier. The motion was adopted. The motion was adopted.

Organizer Makes Report.—State Organizer Morse reported that of the sixty-seven counties in the state 27 have associations of Rural Letter Carriers. The counties organized during the past year with the number of members in each association are Washington 48 members; Iowa 17 members; Walworth 18 members; re-organized St. Croix 18 members; Iowa 21 members; total 88 members. It is the purpose of the Association to enroll all the rural letter carriers in the state in its membership.

Resolved.—That we thank the Honorable Mayor Fathers, Postmaster C. L. Valen, and the Rock County Rural Letter Carriers for their words of welcome and generous hospitality.

Resolved.—That we thank Congressman Cooper, City Attorney Dougherty, and Inspector Esch for their presence and friendly remarks.

Resolved.—That we especially thank W. D. Brown, editor of the R. A. D. News for his visit and brotherly interest in the Wisconsin Association.

CLOSED CONVENTION EARLY IN AFTERNOON

RURAL LETTER CARRIERS HOLD NEXT ANNUAL MEETING IN GREEN BAY.

ELECTED NEW OFFICERS

President W. G. Arle of Sturgeon Bay Re-elected—One Cent Postage Disapproved in Resolution.

Rapid despatch in the transaction of business and the absence of any dilatory tactics enabled the Wisconsin Rural Letter Carriers' Association to close their state convention in this city soon after noon today, three hours earlier than was expected. The election of officers, the adoption, reading of the reports of the Committee on resolutions, the standing committee, the reports of officers, the calling of the roll of delegates, the election of delegates to the national convention made up the body of business brought before the meeting. MRS. WORRY. SUCH A NICE, BENEFICIAL WALK!

It is said by a Tiger player that Ty Cobb has a secret yearning to be a Cobb hitter for a season. From the way he took the jumps when he signed a contract a few weeks ago, and his present form, he might realize his ambition.

Seaton, the headliner, pitching recruit with the Phillies, has yet to lose a game. He has won seven consecutively, working 7 1/2 innings.

Cravath may be a hippo on the bases, but he is sticking the pellet for 396 for the Phils. Cleveland used to keep Hickman for his batting.

Wilson Collins, the Vanderbilt University recruit with the Boston Red Sox, has the reputation of being one of the best all-around athletes developed in Dixie. He was a prominent factor in the Vanderbilt eleven that held Harvard to a 9 to 3 score last fall and his playing at right half featured the game.

In the games at St. Louis, Henri Rondaan has proven conclusively that he is not a first sacker, which means that Jennings may have to put Crawford on the initial base until Gainer recovers from an injury.

Lately the Tigers have developed a strong attack against southpaws, battling Weiland, Leverenz and Hamilton from the hill on two successive days. It is not as it used to be with the Tigers.

The greatest record for distance speed in the world is held by the aeroplane. Jules Goux, the French driver, who took part in the Indianapolis race at Indianapolis, Friday, has driven his Peugeot car 106.2 miles an hour, which is just a trifle slower than the aeroplane mark—108.7 miles an hour.

BREAKS LEG WHILE SLIDING TO THIRD

While sliding to third in the ball game between the Janesville Cardinals and the Clinton city team yesterday at Yost's Park, George Miller, third baseman of the Clinton nine, broke his right leg just above the ankle. Miller had just hit a double and was trying to make third on a bad throw to head him off and on seeing that there was no show for him to make the sack standing, slid, and the spikes of his right shoe caught in the bag and the speed with which he was going turned him over, breaking his leg just above the ankle. The game was stopped and Miller was taken to Janesville where the leg was set.

George Miller has played ball in Janesville for the past three years and is employed at Clinton at present and is an extremely fast and daring base runner. From his daring base stealing in games here he acquired the nickname of "Bush".

The accident happened in the seventh inning after Janesville held the Clinton nine scoreless and the bunched hits off Chamberlin netted them four runs. Berger performed the mound duties for the Janesville nine so effectively that the Clinton team had no show to push a run across the pan. Perfect support helped Berger to a great extent and during the evening he never in danger. Clean hits of Chamberlin, the famed southpaw who pitched for the Clinton nine, resulted in the Cardinals putting the game on ice.

Sunday afternoon they are to clash with the Van Patton Colts of Beloit. The Colts are one of the strongest nines of Beloit and have Lee Moon twirling for them. The last time this pitcher faced the Cardinals was a victory rewarded his efforts and the locals down with three scattered hits. Berger, Lee or Connell will be in the box for the Janesville team and the boys are capable of taking the Beloit team's measure.

Other Games.
The Janesville Young Nationals were defeated by the Broadhead Athletics Friday afternoon at the latter's home. The game was a close one, the opponents proved much older and experienced in the game and administered the whitewash brush to the locals despite efforts of T. Ryan, who pitched for the locals. The feature of the contest was the batting of Emil Hoveland.

Midgets to Milton Junction.
The Janesville Midgets are to cross bats with the Milton Junction Association this afternoon at the latter's home. Poley, Cassidy and Kennedy will be the battery for the locals.

White Sox Unable to Solve Delivery.
Footville Youngsters With Lentz on the Mound Baffle Local Nine in Game Friday.

Inability to hit the ball caused the Footville White Sox to get their first defeat in three years when they handed them yesterday by the Footville nine after nine innings of hard-fought baseball by a five to four score. The game was played at Footville.

Britt twirled for the Sox and was hit hard during certain stages of the game and long hits during the seventh and eighth innings was the downfall of the locals. The Sox were far from their usual game, not covering the proper amount of ground and allowing the Footville nine to grove their hits. Stickney played the star game, taking twelve chances without an error, besides pulling down a fine drive that would have netted two more runs to the Footville nine.

Lentz pitched excellent ball for the home nine, only allowing long hits and keeping these well scattered. The Sox started scoring in the second when a long hit by Stickney and clever base running by Measdale put the Janesville team ahead with two runs. This lead was over for four innings when the opposing batters began finding Britt's delivery for four hits and when the storm blew over the Footville team had the run lead. In the seventh the Sox tied the score but were beaten out in the eighth and were unable to hit the ball in the ninth.

Stickney lead in the batting for the locals, making three hits out of five trips to the plate. Measdale was close behind with two safe swats and a sacrifice.
Summary.
Janesville White Sox—Bleasdale, C; Britt, P; Stewart, 3b; Stickney, 2b; Dalton, 2b; McGinley, 3b; Finnegan, Cronin, McKeigue, Lee and Kennedy, fielders.

The Footville White Sox defeated the Beloit North Enders by the score of 7 to 2 in the big game of the day. Batteries for Beloit were Voltz and Rower; for Footville Tillie and Silverthorn. The Footville team will meet the Evansville nine here next Saturday.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—Jules Goux, driving a Peugeot, carried in the third annual 500 mile race here yesterday, defeating the representatives of five different countries for the international speedway championship. His time was 6:31:43.45, an average of 76.58 miles an hour.

Spencer Wishart and Ralph De Palma jointly defended America in the Mercer, which finished second, six minutes and thirty-seven seconds behind the leader.

Charles Merz of the Stutz team finished third, and Albert Guyot of England, was fourth in a Sunbeam. Theodore Pilette of Belgium carried the colors of the Chicago Automobile club to fifth position in his Mercedes-Knight.

Joe Dawson, who won last year's race, averaged 78.7 miles an hour. This is the world's best mark for the distance. Goux's victory was a surprise, as he had been forced to use the speed but there was no necessity of using it.

Two Hurt in Only Accident.
Jacob H. Mason, a local man, was caught beneath his car when it upset on the back stretch, turning the one hundredth lap, and suffered a broken leg. His mechanic, Lee Dunning, was thrown clear of the wreck and escaped with a pair of broken ribs. This was the only serious accident.

Goux assumed the lead at 135 miles and retained it. He won in addition to the grand prize three of the world's most famous racing trophies and a pair of broken ribs. This was the only serious accident.

In addition to the $20,000 prize for first place, the high prize, he will receive in addition trophies and cash remunerations amounting to another $20,000.

Winner Drives Perfect Race.
Goux drove a perfect race. He was aided materially in the work of John Aiken, former national racing team manager, whose craftiness was particularly responsible for Joe Dawson's victory last year. Aiken overcame the natural tendency of making a disposition and held Goux's driving within the bounds of reason. Goux tonight frankly attributed his victory in a great measure to the efficient pit work and signaling for which he said Aiken was responsible.

The Peugeot pilot drove sanely and conservatively. He readily adapted himself to conditions and refused to be drawn into pockets. He was courageous without and fearlessly gave vent to sensational speed. He held the curves remarkably well and never was in danger. He changed eight times during the race, but lost little time in the changes.

It was thought Goux made a mistake in chasing Bob Burman during the first hour of the race, but the advantage gained then enabled him to loaf in the latter part of the struggle. The champion feared Burman and entered the race determined to keep the speed king's pace.

FAMOUS RACE TRACK SOLD UNDER HAMMER

Morris Park Estate For Sale at Auction to Last Week or More—Divided into 3,000 Lots.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, May 31.—An auction sale of the Morris Park estate, embracing the historic old race track of that name, was begun today. The crowd that gathered for the opening of the sale was the first that has been seen in the great clubhouse since the good old days when racing was an established institution in New York. The sale is expected to last a week or longer, as there are upwards of 3,000 lots to go under the hammer. The clubhouse and its furnishings, representing an investment of half a million dollars, will be disposed of to the highest bidder and may be removed by the purchaser or retained as a home.

Morris Park was first used for racing purposes August 20, 1889; as the successor of the famous old Jerome Park. Under the auspices of the New York Jockey club and later under the Westchester Racing Association, it was the scene of regular spring and fall meetings for fifteen years, until the end of 1904, when the Westchester Racing Association transferred its activities to Belmont Park.

BILLS CAN BE CUT

Economical Operation of Automobiles Easily Possible.

DEVOTE CARE TO GASOLINE

Watchful Eye the Main Thing Needed, and the Cost of Maintaining a Car Will be Appreciably Diminished in Very Short Time.

Economical operation with any car may be said to be attained when about fourteen miles on one gallon of gasoline is the average over a fairly long period in the use of that car, according to Arthur Holmes, chief engineer of one of the motor car companies.

"Gasoline economy is but one of the many economies that can and should be worked for on a car," said he. "It is possible but is seldom obtained by the average man, no matter what car he owns. It is necessary that it should have the correct amount of air, although a little excess of air does very little harm. It is necessary that each cylinder have a correct mixture, and this problem is one of distribution. If a perfect mixture were made in the carburetor distribution would be easy, but in general today it is a mechanical mixture of gasoline and air, and the correct distribution of this is not easy.

"Ignition is another feature of gasoline economy, and ignition should always be at a point that would give maximum power.

"How a man drives is important. If the operator holds out his clutch when going down a hill, and allows the engine to run under its own power, he is needlessly using gasoline. If he holds out the clutch when he is slowing up the car, instead of closing the throttle, he is needlessly using gasoline. In fact every time that the breaks are used on the car and the throttle not closed, and this can happen by holding out the clutch and leaving the throttle open, gasoline is wasted.

"The average man does not realize the importance of the needle valve. In all cases this valve should be adjusted to the minimum possible and still have good operation. In the winter time the valve may be opened to twice its regular opening in order to get good operation, when everything is cold. "It is very likely that if the needle valve is not closed down when the motor warms up, from two to three times as much gasoline is used as is necessary.

"Another source of gasoline loss is in small leaks. Very frequently the gasoline valve or some of the unions leak just a drop now and then, but inasmuch as this drop is falling during twenty-four hours a day it amounts to a great deal. For this reason all such places should be examined at regular intervals to note their condition. Leaks in the float or air leaks around the carburetor can produce waste, and for that reason this part should receive enough attention to know that it is clean and in good operating condition. Probably twenty miles per hour represents the best speed for economical operation."

Melancholy Experience.
It has been the melancholy experience of more than one unscheduled motorist that under favorable conditions tires will freeze to the ground. The experience usually comes when the car has been left standing in the open toward the latter part of a warm winter day, when the temperature is gradually falling below the freezing point. Generally speaking the immediate result of starting at such times is to tear a generous strip from the tread of each tire. Sometimes, when the tires have sunk deeply into the mud which afterwards has frozen, it will be found practically impossible to move the car until they have been chopped free.

Automobile Loses Identity.
When is an automobile not an automobile? When it is attached to Oklahoma. This fact came to light recently in the suit of an Oklahoma man against the sheriff for attaching his automobile. Under the Oklahoma law, carriages are free from attachment, and the man in this case contended that the automobile was a carriage, and hence could not be attached. The judge upheld the contention, and the automobile was released.

Keep Separate.
Don't allow the valve parts of different types of tire to become mingled in a single box. Where it is necessary to use valves of different sizes and patterns, through the employment of mixed equipment, it is better to keep the respective "spares" in separate coin envelopes, properly labeled. This precaution will save much misapprehension by the roadside.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Immanuel Baptist church, with more than 2,000 members, is situated near the corner of Michigan avenue and Twenty-second street, less than two miles from the very heart of Chicago. The church is open seven days in the week, and fairly teems with activity in its many departments. There are four missions and five Sunday schools and the corps of Sunday school teachers numbers 150.

When the doors of the church are thrown open in the morning, it is but a few moments until the men waiting outside are seated at long tables in the church dining-room. Two people in the kitchen have already been preparing coffee and bread and butter.

Men from the crowd are selected to serve and are paid ten cents each in herd is so independent that no second invitation is necessary.

There is a verse of scripture that says something like this: "All we like sheep have gone astray." Not very complimentary to the sheep, because it suggests weakness, and need of sheep-fold protection, but how about the goats?

The great God who created us, and Whom we call "Our Father," is not a responder of persons. He has no pets in the flock, and while the church is of Divine origin, the line which separates it from what is called the great outside world, is largely an imaginary line.

Human wants and human needs are a common heritage, and the heart which beats in sympathy, and lends a helping hand, is performing service of the highest order, and when this spirit is the prevailing spirit in the church, it prompts to intelligent action.

During the past few years there has developed in the business world a demand for a certain class of talent which did not heretofore exist. This demand is in keeping with the progress of the age, for we are passing through an era of revolution, and facing many new problems.

The boy who inherits his father's farm or his father's business, soon discovers that old methods are antiquated, and fail to respond to new conditions, and so the new demand has brought to the surface the "efficiency man," and the title means all that it implies.

This new man is not a capitalist,

but he is a scientist to the extent that by careful study he is able to apply scientific methods to business, and this he does so successfully that his services are in demand, and liberally rewarded.

The railroads and the great industries depend on their efficiency engineers for suggestions and advice as to management.

The factory employing a large force of men, finds at the close of the year that results are not satisfactory, and the efficiency man is called on to locate the weak spot. He finds it in any department, from the office to the shipping room, and when he finds it then it becomes his duty to remedy the evil by combining in his report a detailed plan of operation which will produce one hundred per cent efficiency.

The industrial world is loaded with what is known as "overhead charges," and many of them are so complicated that they tax the ability of the best management. These charges enter largely into the cost of production, and the efficiency man always makes them a careful study.

Many failures in commercial life would be prevented if this same class of talent was employed in time to prevent disaster. The records of failure show that inefficiency somewhere is the principal cause.

The object of the agricultural college, the technical school, and various other special courses in training, is to equip boys and girls for efficiency, and so it happens that the new generation is able to show the fathers and mothers how to do things which produce larger results.

The schools of the land recognize today as never before the necessity for work along the same lines, and so through the avenue of industrial and manual training the initial work of efficiency is being intelligently promoted.

The people who accomplish things in life are the efficient people; and this applies to every department of human endeavor. It pays the boy and girl to get ready to live, and the people in position to help them are responsible.

It is just possible that the church might adopt business methods along this line to advantage. When a new house of worship is dedicated, special talent is called in to do things which raise money, and when a series of meetings are in progress, the services of an evangelist are in demand.

But the church needs efficiency along other lines, and many an earnest pastor is discouraged, when confronted with some of the problems.

The average church is a financial failure, because efficient methods are ignores.

The average church is lightly attended and the efficiency man who can suggest the cause and remedy, is in demand. It is a broad and fertile field, inviting the best thought and inteligent action.

CLAM FISHERS MAKE PROFITABLE HAULS

OVER THIRTY MEN ENGAGED IN GATHERING SHELLS FROM ROCK RIVER NEAR CITY.

FIND RICH CLAM BEDS

Stretch Between Lower Dam And Afton Yields Large Returns Daily—Very Few Pearls Are Found.

Unknown to the majority of the citizens of this city Rock River in the vicinity of Janesville is one of the most popular clam fishing streams. It is the middle west and at the present time there are no less than thirty men camping along the river banks searching for the fresh water clam, the shells of which are an important article of commerce. More people are fishing for clams in this vicinity than in years past because the big clam beds at Muscatine and Davenport, Iowa have been completely "clamed out" as one of the veterans of the occupation terms it.

There are five camps between the lower dam and Afton where the river is exceedingly shallow and where the clam beds yield sufficiently to make the occupation profitable. The clams lie at the bottom in countless thousands. They are half buried in the mud and sand and move slowly along the bottom.

against the current, in this manner securing their nourishment which comes floating down the river in microscopic particles.

In the clammer's outfit is a drag which consists of an iron bar from which strings carrying small twisted hooks are suspended. Each drag has from seventy to a hundred of these small prongs. The clammer begins at the upper end of a clam bed and drags the bottom of the river slowly down stream.

The clams have their shells opened seeking a mid-day meal and when one of these prongs strikes their gills they immediately close up and the expression of "lighter than a clam" is appropriate for at times it is impossible to pull them off from the drag. After floating down the stream for several hundred feet the clammer lifts his net and throws another into the river, while the captured clams are pulled off and thrown to the bottom of the boat. After several repetitions of this the boat is well filled and the clams are taken ashore and dumped into an even. This is to kill the clams making their shells open up. The oven consists of a wooden box six feet in length and four in width having a hot fire underneath. A small quantity of water is put in the oven and after an hour's boiling the clams begin to open when they are dumped out into a long bench, as shown in the accompanying picture, cleaned and thrown into a pile.

From the thousands of clams that abound in Rock River it would be difficult to find a clam which is as valuable as the one which was found here. The clammer found the fact that very few pearls are found and claim that this is due to the gravel bottom, the best pearls being found where the bed of the river is of fine sand and in one place where there were six men working, they had gathered a small cupful of slugs but the entire lot was valued at ten dollars.

There are numerous varieties of clams the most common in Rock river is the "pocket book" clam which is so named because every shell has three ridges projecting out. The most valuable shell is the "Nigger Head" a round black shell but this species is very rare here. Shells from this clam bring as high as thirty dollars a ton as the inner surface is pure white and in great demand in making the more expensive buttons.

The "pocket book" having a dull black surface and being nearly round are found here in great quantities and for some unknown reason, pearls are most likely to be found in this variety. Other valuable clams found in Rock river are the "mucker" "pimple back" and "big toe" the latter being shaped like an egg. While most of the clams are of value the "butterfly" a large flat clam, the black and yellow sand shell, their shape being long and round and the "puncake" are of little value as their inner surface is colored either a delicate pink or purple and if the coloring is dark they are thrown out.

The price of the shells fluctuates during the season of the year and depend greatly on the quality of the shells and their variety. The prices range from twelve the lowest, to twenty and twenty-five dollars a ton, the average being sixteen and eighteen. Large profits follow the efforts of the clammer as an industrious digger with one helper can take care of three tons a week if he is favored with good weather. The diggers along the Rock river state that the clams are more plentiful than the majority of the streams where they have worked at previous years.

FIVE MEN INJURED IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Motorcycle Rider Collides With Automobile—Occupants of Touring Car Crash Into Culvert.

Five people were injured yesterday as a result of two automobile accidents, the first taking place at the intersection of Milton and Prospect streets and the second just outside of the city limits on Milton avenue in front of the residence of John Granger.

Henry Bobzien, employee at the Rock River Cotton company, was riding his motorcycle up Milton avenue just behind a rig and at the intersection of the streets started to turn out to pass the vehicle. As he turned out an automobile coming down the street was passing the rig at the same time and both drivers did not see each other in time to avoid a collision. Bobzien's machine was struck by the auto and the wheels caught in the gears, dragging him down the street a short distance. The driver of the auto immediately stopped his machine and went to see the extent of the motorcycle rider's injuries. A physician was called and found that the young man sustained sprained ankle and numerous minor injuries. Bobzien's machine was badly wrecked, the frame being twisted, the wheels being bent beyond repair. The motor was not injured to any great extent.

The second accident occurred about ten o'clock last evening on Milton avenue near the city limits. A Ford touring car carrying five men who claimed to be working on the Rock River bridge, crashed into a culvert in front of the John Granger place, throwing the occupants from their seats and injuring four of them. One man was hurled headlong through the mud and splashed and cut about his face. The driver suffered a sprained or broken wrist.

Trouble with the gas generator was responsible for the accident which followed an attempt to start the engine. The car was on the side of the road on the turnpike. J. A. Drummond was called to bring the men to the city where they secured the services of a physician.

JANESVILLE'S FIRST MOTOR FIRE TRUCK.
Janesville's first fire truck, soon to be accepted by the city, is shown in the illustration. The machine in the tests given it thus far, has been eminently satisfactory, meeting all demands as to power, speed, hill climbing, and negotiating unpaved streets. During the past week it demonstrated its power by pulling the steam fire engine weighing five tons, over several miles of city streets, including an abrupt grade affording no opportunity for gaining momentum.

HILTON LOSES CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Appeal From Circuit Court Judgment Dismissing Damage Suit Against Hayes Brothers.

The state supreme court today affirmed the judgment of the circuit court for Rock county in the case of L. L. Hilton, plaintiff and appellant, against Michael and Dennis Hayes, defendants and respondents. This appeal was from a judgment of the circuit court for Rock county, dismissing Hilton's complaint. Hilton sued to recover damages for injuries received by being crushed in a passenger elevator in the Hayes block, Janesville. Hilton alleged negligence of the elevator operator, while the owners of the block claimed he (Hilton) was guilty of contributory negligence.

The jury found the defendants were negligent and the plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence. Judgment was rendered for the defendants, and the jury decided that $250 would compensate the plaintiff for his injuries. Hilton called this outrageously inadequate.

ONE DAY'S REST IN SEVEN IS PROVIDED IN MEASURE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 31.—The bill for one day's rest in seven will be on the calendar for engrossment Monday night with a recommendation by the judiciary committee for passage and with an amendment which leaves the law's enforcement in the hands of the state railroad commission and the state industrial commission.

This measure was originally drafted by the committee on labor, but when it was reported out it raised so many objections that it was sent to the committee on judiciary to determine its constitutionality. This body heard long arguments upon it, and it now receives a favorable report. By the amendment, employees of public service corporations come under the railroad commission's jurisdiction, and all others under the industrial commission. The bill as now framed gives the industrial commission power to suspend the operation of the law at any time either by general or special order. This amendment is calculated to allay most of the opposition.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

THE OLD OLD QUESTION

Is the servant question quite so terrible a problem as we have been led to think it?

Some weeks ago I wrote a little article giving my opinion that it was not, and that a woman who would treat those who served her reasonably and considerately need not pay exorbitant wages or change maids every few weeks. I expected nothing but criticism for this stand as the opposite has so often been claimed in women's columns and women's magazines. Therefore I was more than happy to receive the following corroborative letter in a letter which evidently came from a woman of education, refinement, and position.

"Will you allow me to thank you for your very sane paragraphs on the servant question," writes this woman.

"Between my own and my mother's houses, in winter and in summer life, in small and in large families, I have come closely into contact with many servants. And I have never known one whom I did not both respect and admire. They have been in no sentimental way whatever, among my most loyal friends, in trouble they have helped me as no one else could by taking all care off of me. Over and over they have shown the same self-control, the same kindly wish to be of service, the same dignity that we prize so much in ourselves. I am in a constant state of gratitude to my servants, not only for their skill but for their spirit. This spirit is not due to any magical thing I do for them, but simply to their own fine characters."

"The servant problem is so absolutely hopeless as many mistresses would have us believe when one woman has found it so very simple?"

"This spirit," she says, "is not due to any magical thing I do for them. Perhaps there are some women who would differ from her. Evidently she does not consider as magical or extraordinary the use of courtesy and consideration toward those who help her, and a habit of remembering that they are human beings like herself, with good qualities that deserve appreciation."

There are many women to whom such an attitude would seem most extraordinary and magical. Such women will always have a servant problem. They will always be writing to the magazines about the rudeness, the unreliability and the inefficiency of their servants and will never reflect that it is barely possible that these servants are a mirror of those with whom they live.

You think I am prejudiced in favor of the servant side of the question? Only I am always prejudiced in favor of that side which has not the opportunity or the ability to speak for itself.

FISH FOR HOLIDAYS.

One may always get fish in most hotels on Friday, if no other day in the week, as so many people eschew meat on that day.

For the real fish lover there is nothing equal to the paper bag for roasting a fish, as it keeps in every bit of the characteristic flavor. Grease the bag and place the fish, stuffed and seasoned, in the bag. Lay the bag on the oven rack, so that it can be easily drawn out. When a slice of halibut is to be baked, place a few slices of tomato, and bake in the bag. The sauce which will be found in the bag after roasting may be poured over the fish when serving.

Fresh perch are a fine flavored fish if well dressed and cooked. A little salt pork tried out to fry them in and a bit of onion to add flavor. Roll the fish in seasoned cornmeal before putting to fry.

Creamy Croquettes.—Fish croquettes which are soft and creamy may be made in two ways. If they are made with a white sauce, not too thick and thoroughly chilled before cooking, when dropped into the hot fat the outside will be brown before the sauce has softened much. Another method is to add a little gelatine to the white sauce, which will keep them firm and quite stiff until after they are fried. A teaspoonful of gelatine will be sufficient.

Finnan haddie is fine cooked in milk and a few strips of green peppers laid over it for flavor.

If fish have a muddy flavor, try soaking them, before cooking, for an hour in water with a little lemon juice added.

A very dainty way to serve fillets of fish is to add to each layer of fish a layer of stuffing of any kind; fold or roll the fillet around the forcemeat, and fasten with a wooden skewer. Squeeze lemon juice over and cover with a buttered paper; bake ten to twenty minutes, according to the thickness of the fish.

Water cress, lemon slices, cucumber and radishes, as well as parsley, may all be used for a garnish for fish.

Every Day Talks For Every Day People...

Do you fuss about birthdays? We do! Daddy says we're a foolish lot, but without looking very hard you can see that he enjoys the "fuss" of a birthday as much as any of us. Today is my birthday. It was with genuine reluctance the "wee ones" went to school. They wanted to stay home and celebrate. We're going to have our celebration tomorrow. I am going to prepare everything today. Of course we are going to pack a basket and go out in the woods. Somehow all our best times means a well filled basket and a tramp to the woods, no dress-up affair, just a good old romping time.

We are going to call on grandma too, always do on our birthdays, to thank her for the things we ought to thank her for, and to give her a piece of our wonderful cake. Then too, grandma isn't as young as we wish she were, or as strong. And a year for her is so much difference in one's life. Last year we had two grandmas to help celebrate our birthdays and we miss the letter this morning that we never failed to receive before.

We always made a birthday cake for one of our grandpas, a cake like his mother used to make for him when he was but a boy, just a carrot loaf cake, frosted. That was what he liked. Last time we made it he was not feeling well. His birthday was in winter and this day I have in memory was so cold and stormy it was five o'clock in the afternoon before I could get home with his birthday cake. He sat in his big chair by the fire as I went in, his old worn hands clasped in his lap. I like to think how his kind eyes lighted when I went in and he saw the box containing the carrot loaf. "I knew you'd come," he said. "I knew you wouldn't forget."

For the last three years I have had no occasion to make a plain carrot cake, the big arm chair is empty now, and words fail me when I try to tell how much I'd gladly give to be able to make again that little plain cake that my father liked so well. If I didn't believe in a hereafter, (but I do), I believe surely since my father paid his debt to nature because I want so to see him again.

Each of my "wee ones" gave me a gift this morning. (I had to take a birthday spanking too.) There has been much mystery about our place for the past three or four days. When the "wee ones" would go in the bedroom, shutting the door carefully behind them, I'd knock on the door and call out, "I know I know." They'd come out disclaiming all knowledge of birthdays in general.

But this morning they were up at six and there was much bustle and excitement and finally I was called in and told it was my birthday. Somehow, even though I knew this was coming, I was not prepared and my throat tightened and my eyes blurred as I thanked them for the gifts their dear little hands had made. I told them too, that I thought God was very good to me to let me be with them today.

Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

very fine and season with paprika, prepared mustard, chopped hard-boiled eggs and mayonnaise sufficient to make a smooth, moist dressing. Put this between buttered slices of brown wheat bread with a little lettuce cut in shreds with shears. Wrap separately as directed in paraffine paper.

Materials:—Eggs, two; sugar, one-half cup; butter, one-fourth cup; molasses, one-half cup; sour milk, one-half cup; flour, one and one-half cups; cinnamon, one teaspoonful; cloves, one-half teaspoonful; nutmeg, raisins (chopped), one-half cup; soda, three-fourths teaspoonful; walnut meats, one-half cup.

Potato Salad.
Directions:—Beat the yolks of the eggs gradually, beating in the sugar, butter, softened and all the other ingredients. Dissolve the soda in a tablespoonful of boiling water, adding the milk to them to the molasses. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs, raisins and nuts. Bake in small pans or gem pans in a moderate oven.

Stuffed Eggs.
Material:—Potatoes, one quart; cucumber, one quart; onion, one; mayonnaise, whipped cream, grated cheese, one-half cup; salt, paprika, chopped parsley one tablespoon.

Directions:—Boil potatoes with skins on and while hot peel and cut in dice. Turn over a third a little French dressing, cover and set in a cold place for an hour or more. Peel the cucumber and put into ice water (never salt water).

Grate the onion, add to the potato. Dice the cucumber and add also; season, add the cheese and also an equal amount of whipped cream and mayonnaise. Cover a wooden dish with paraffine paper, turn in the salad and sprinkle the chopped parsley over the top. Pack in the basket.

Hard Boiled Eggs.
Hard boil some eggs—the desired number; remove the yolks and rub them fine in a bowl. Season with salt, paprika, finely chopped ham, and mayonnaise. Return this paste to the halves of eggs and press them together. Fringe the ends with a square of paraffine paper, wrap each egg in this and twist the fringed ends in place.

Lemonade.
Always squeeze the juice from the lemons and put into a bottle and pack in the basket. Then it is very easy to add sugar and water when ready for use.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a fat girl of thirteen. I would like to know what would make me lose weight. (2)—I am in the fourth, senior, grade. Am I too late for my age? (3)—There are girls of sixteen in the same grade. (4)—Am I too young to think about boys? (5)—Do boys like fat girls? It breaks my heart to think of all the other girls, fat and thin, having a beau and I can't get one. FAT GIRL.

(1)—Run and exercise a lot. Don't eat so much. Don't eat any candies, cakes, rich pastries, gravies or fat-making foods. You will probably grow thinner as you grow older. (2)—You ought to be in a higher grade. Perhaps if you study harder and think less about boys you will get thinner. (3)—Yes, except as friends to play with. (4)—If a girl is sweet and modest, the right sort of boys like her whether she is fat or thin. You are too young for a beau, so don't worry. Time enough when you are eighteen.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am thirteen years old and weigh 113 pounds. My mother said I weigh too much. Please tell me what to do to reduce myself? (2)—What is good to whiten my face and neck? (3)—My hair is very thin. What is good to make it thick? (4)—BROWN EYES.

(1)—If you are tall, you do not weigh much. You will probably get thinner as you grow older. Do not eat candies or any sweet things, pastries or rich gravies or fat-making foods. Exercise outdoors a great deal. (2)—Buttermilk or lemon juice. (3)—Rub vaseline into the scalp and brush the hair a great deal. (4)—Fairly good.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of thirteen, and one-half years. Am I too young to go with boys? (2)—Is a girl your friend if she takes a friend away from you? (3)—Is it proper to receive cards and letters from a boy you have known a long time? (4)—Is it right for boys to flirt? (5)—How can I remove ring worms? (6)—Should a girl let a boy wear her ring? (7)—Would an embroidered dress be suitable to receive a certificate? BRIGHT EYES.

(1)—Yes, my dear, if you want them for beaux. (2)—No. (3)—I think it is all right if he doesn't expect slushiness in return. (4)—No. (5)—Paint with discolored iodine. (6)—No. (7)—It would be very suitable.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of fourteen. I have no mother to give me advice. Would it be harm to wear a ring from a boy friend of mine? (2)—Should I wear it? (3)—Should he ask for it or shall I give it to him? Another boy gave me his ring. Would you take it from him? BLUE EYES.

It is never wise for young people to wear each other's rings, unless they are engaged. The ring may be lost or damaged. Besides, it gives a false impression to those who don't know the circumstances. Return the rings you have now and do not take any more.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of sixteen and am going with a fellow of twenty. I think lots of him, but he doesn't know it. There is another girl that goes to see him. Do you think she will beat my time? I don't think it is a girl's place to go to see a boy, do you? (2)—Should a boy hug or kiss a girl before they are engaged? SWEET SIXTEEN.

(1)—No, "Sweet Sixteen." I don't think much of a girl who goes to see a boy. I don't think there is any danger that she will "beat" you to him, because he certainly can't respect her and will surely get tired of her. (2)—No.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Things Worth Knowing.
To Wash Windows and Woodwork.—One tablespoon common lamp oil to one-half pail soft warm water; wash and polish with soft cloth.

To Whiten Clothes.—Cut a lemon in halves (wind the seeds out) and let it remain in the boiler until the clothes are ready to come out. It will make them very white.

After washing madras curtains, wring dry and place back on the poles to dry, being careful to put even at bottom, then take down and press with warm iron upon papers laid on floor.

Chopped into cheesecloth bags is excellent for cleaning wall paper.

The Table.
French Toast.—Beat one egg; add half cup water or milk, one spoonful flour, a little salt. Roll slices of bread in the batter and fry until a light brown on griddle.

Chocolate Pie.—Two cups of milk, yolks of two eggs, two-thirds cup sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, two tablespoons grated chocolate, half cup milk sugar and chocolate together when hot, add the cornstarch mixed in a little of the cold milk; then add beaten yolks; let all come to a boil. Line pie tin with good pie crust; bake, then pour in chocolate cream. Beat whites of eggs to a stiff froth with two tablespoons white sugar. Pour over pie and set in oven to brown.

Baked Eggs.—Butter a platter, or similar dish that will stand the heat. Then break out on it as many eggs as required. Around and between them place a strip of thick, sweet cream, dust sparingly with paprika and bake, when hot, add the cream if added first. Bake for two minutes. They will cook more after being removed from the Co

Canned Asparagus.—Fill an asparagus boiler nearly full of hot salted water, bring to a boil and when this point is reached lay the asparagus in the water. Boil until the asparagus is tender, but not until it is soft or broken. Take it out carefully, stand it on end, the tips uppermost in fruit jars. Turn the boiling water in which the asparagus was cooked into the jars, filling each to overflowing and seal at once. Be sure that your rubbers are in good condition and that the tops fit closely. Keep the jars in a dark place.

Constipation Cured.
Dr. King's New Life Pills will relieve constipation promptly and get your bowels in normal condition again. John Supsic, of Sanbury, Pa., says: "They are the best pills I ever used, and I advise everyone to use them for constipation, indigestion and all ailments. Will help you. Price 25c. Recommended by People's Drug Co."

IF TOMORROW IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

A prosperous year awaits you, and pleasant alliances will be formed. You are in danger of hurting the feelings of a friend by failure to appreciate their kindness to you. Your own judgment of values is likely to be one-sided.

Those born Sunday June 1, will have quarrelsome dispositions and will rarely come out victorious. They are naturally able to learn the lessons of defeat, and when they learn to control themselves and to give their minds serious effort they will be phenomenally successful, especially in undertakings requiring activity and endurance.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)
"On account of the bad accident to the third section of the big circus train, in which several of the performers were injured, there will be no performance this evening," but instead I will tell you something about the boys that I met at different times all over the United States, most of whom were in the railroad business.

I think the first one of these to leave Janesville was one Ezra Miller, in about eighteen and sixty Ezra Miller patented a coupler and platform to be used on railway cars and it was only a short time that it was adopted not only in this country, but all over Europe and I think it was left Janesville with his family and moved to New York City and I think that even up to the present day there has been little or no improvement on Miller's coupler and platform. And through this device Mr. Miller has not only made himself famous, but made millions of dollars.

For many years while I was in the show business and more especially through the western country it was very often the morning that I would step out of the sleeping car and the first man to greet me would be the depot agent and it was very seldom that I knew them. But they were boys for the most part that had received their early education in what was known in Janesville for many years as the Valentine school of telegraphy. And there is many a man in the railroad business today and has been for many years, who is high up in his work and his first work in the business was his schooling in Janesville with the Valentines.

Early in the eighties a young man came to Janesville by the name of A. D. Davidson and bought a scholarship at the Valentine school and while he had little money the young man was thrifty and asked Mr. Valentine if he could find him a place where he could do chores for his board. Mr. Davidson soon found a place for the young man in the family of the late Dr. J. B. Whiting where he remained until his education in the school had been completed. And all this time Davidson had been doing odd chores for different families around town and all the money that he earned he placed in the bank. After leaving Janesville he went west and now is a man quoted at many millions in real estate services were anticipated by the great system and is said to be the largest single land owner in Canada, and is at the head of the Great Saskatchewan Land Company.

Another young man by the name of A. D. Morse, the late general superintendent of the C. & N. W. Railway, also received his education in the business at the Valentine school.

A. C. Murphy, who is now superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company with headquarters in Chicago was also a graduate of the Valentine school, and Mr. Murphy said himself when Dick Valentine got him his first position in a telegraph office that this was the first dollar that he ever earned by his own efforts.

A. A. Kroschel, manager of a 50,000 acre sisal hemp ranch in Yucatan, Mexico, graduated here many years ago and started for the southwest to make his fortune. Since that time he is now well up in telegraph business and he is now one of the foremost business men in that part of the country.

W. M. Bonar, auditor of the Pittsburgh Terminal Railway, with headquarters at Pittsburgh, was a native of this state and it was along in the latter part of the eighties that he left here and started for the east.

James P. Ames, another young man who got his education in Janesville, and is now well up in telegraph business, being superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph in one of the large western cities.

J. G. Wray, chief engineer of the Chicago Telephone Company and Edward Wray, assistant superintendent of telegraph C. R. I. & P. Railway, are Janesville boys, but not from Valentine's school.

D. W. Jerome, whose home was in Janesville on South Jackson street, commenced his work in the Valentine school and after graduating here he went to Chicago where he secured a position in the offices of the New York Central Railway. He now is general western passenger agent of this great system.

F. A. Pechin, who is now general superintendent of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway, with headquarters in St. Paul, came to Janesville in the middle eighties, worked for his board in a private family, and after graduating at the Valentine school secured a position in Chicago and it was only a short time until his services were anticipated by the great system and Frank Pechin's rise in business has almost been phenomenal for he now has charge of this great system of roads from St. Paul south and west. Stanley M. Braden, another young man, who was general superintendent of the Chicago Northwestern railway, also secured his early education in business in Janesville.

In one of the far western towns when I was with the Adam Forepaugh show I had a long visit with the agent at the depot in the evening and he told me something about his experience in the Valentine school. He said, "You know after I had been there some four or five weeks it seemed to me that I never could learn the business and I got discouraged and went into the office of Mr. Valentine and told him that I thought it was a question whether I could ever learn the telegraph business or not." He said, "Mr. Valentine smiled and said, 'Why young man, I have been watching you quite a little lately and I thought you were advancing faster than the average boys. Now, all you have to do is to stick to it and when it commences to come to you it will be much easier for you.' And whether this was true or not," he said, "it gave me new hope and I went back to my work and was not long before I commenced to see daylight ahead and as quick as I had finished my education there Mr. Valentine had a position for me but I have never seen Janesville since I graduated and left there for the west."

These boys that I met all over the western country had only the best to say of Janesville, the people and the Valentine school.

Among others who have left Janesville years ago and made good were the Cantillon boys. W. B., who is now general manager of the Northwestern railway and his brother, James, who is also a division superintendent of the same road in the far west. Only a few years ago when the owners of the road were looking around for the right kind of a man for the legal department they selected another man by the name of Edward M. Hyzer, an old Janesville boy for this work. Mr. Hyzer took up his work in this department in Milwaukee where he remained a few years and after the resignation of Mr. Bauer, who was general counsel of the road in Chicago, Mr. Hyzer was promoted to that position, and it was then that they sent for William G. Wheeler to take Mr. Hyzer's place in Milwaukee. Mr. Wheeler only remained in Milwaukee a short time, until he was sent for and is now in the main offices in Chicago as assistant counsel to Hyzer for the Northwestern system.

And after reading the above list, which is by no means a complete one, would you not think that Janesville had done her share in furnishing men who were broad enough to hold the lines and guide the ways of such an institution as the Chicago & Northwestern railway.

And now Mr. President and Secretary of the 25,000 Booster Club, would it not be a good idea, to send all of these boys a button and ask them to join the Booster Club for it goes without saying that these men would be only too glad to join the ranks and boost for the old hometown.

Pathfinder Construction Cuts Down Repair Bill

Pathfinder Motor Cars
The only medium-priced high-grade cars

CONSTRUCTION WITH A REASON

A unique and important feature of Pathfinder chassis construction is the method of driving through a torsion tube and yoke which prevents disalignment of the wheels and saves wear on tires besides eliminating radius rods, a constant cause of noise and rattles.

Pathfinder construction requires a double-drop frame which gives all the advantages of an underslung car without the disadvantages and means low center of gravity with entire absence of side-sway.

All the moving parts are enclosed in aluminum housing—nothing is exposed to the dust but the tires. Such construction makes for economy in the long run because dirt and sand cut the life out of your car when the vital parts are not enclosed. All bearings in the Pathfinder chassis are bronze bushed instead of steel against steel—steel bearing rust and squeak while with bronze bushings your car will always be noiseless even in old age.

This minute attention to detail is the foundation of Pathfinder superiority. It explains why the Pathfinder is the official good roads car, endorsed by A. A. A. and U. S. Government and used by them in the survey of three transcontinental roads, and is also endorsed by R. A. C. of Great Britain.

struction. Ask at our salesroom, or phone foring as these—which explain Pathfinder con. We have "101 Reasons"—all just as interest a demonstration.

MOTHER SO POORLY

Could Hardly Care for Children—Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bovina Center, N.Y.—“For six years I have not had as good health as I have now. I was very young when my first baby was born and my health was very bad after that. I was not regular and I had pains in my back and was so poorly that I could hardly take care of my two children. I doctored with several doctors but got no better. They told me there was no help without an operation. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me wonderfully. I do most of my own work now and take care of my children. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women.”

Mrs. WILLARD A. GRAHAM, Care of ELDSWORTH TITTLE, Bovina Center, N.Y.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for women's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., confidential, Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Janesville Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Janesville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

Mrs. Emelie Hall, 542 S. Franklin St., Janesville, Wis., says: “I suffered terribly from pains through the small of my back and limbs and I also had trouble from the kidney secretions. Someone finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so, procuring them at the People's Drug Co. The contents of two or three boxes corrected my trouble. You may continue to publish my former statement regarding Doan's Kidney Pills. Since I used them two years ago, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine.”

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE DAUGHTER OF DAVID KERR

By HARRY KING TOOTLE
Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

Wright was on the point of again urging her to leave Belmont when he heard the faint cries of newsboys far down the street. Nearer and nearer came the boys. Louder and louder were their cries. Street sales in Belmont were so small that the little urchins who sold papers to chance customers were never very noisy. An unusual clamor on their part betokened some extraordinary piece of news. Their shouts at last began to attract the attention of others in the room: Kerr, Kendall and Hayes looked at Wright questioning. Then, as they began to distinguish the cries of one boy in advance of the others, the three men walked hastily to the window and looked out on the street. Everyone was rushing for a paper, or else standing with the sheet in his hand staring at the first page with its big black type.

Recovering himself suddenly, Wright tried to talk to Gloria to drown the noise, but it was too late.

“What is that noise? What are they shouting for?” she asked. “Listen.” She put her hand on her arm as a signal to say nothing while she tried to hear what the boys were saying.

“Extry! Extry! Get a News! All about the gratters! Extry! Read the big steal! Full account of the railroad grab! Big men and hoodlums in combine! Extry! Extry!”

It was now a flood of sound as the boys came under the window.

“What's it all about?” the girl asked.

“That's nothing, only a crowd of newsboys raising a racket. Gloria, listen to me. We must get away from here. Even if you're happy in Belmont, I'm not. Won't you do this for me? Let's get away from this office and talk it over.”

She shook her head, and refused to move.

“Gloria, you must do as I say without question. Just this once, please.” Both turned at this instant, as did the others, startled by a hubbub in the outer office. Suddenly the door was burst open violently by young Jim Winthrop, the Banner's political reporter. He rushed breathlessly into the room, flourishing a copy of the Belmont News. Following him came Williams with a look of amazement on his face as he read the headlines of the copy of the paper he had.

“Judge Gilbert! Judge Gilbert!” gasped the reporter, with eyes for no one else. “Have you seen the News? Big story about the belt line railway and the trolley! Gimme the facts, so I can show the News up.”

“What?” asked Gilbert. “What the paper says?” She held up the paper, her hands trembling. Then she began to read: “If the party now in power wins, Belmont will surely be sold to the merciless stock-peddlers terminal trust. The deal, which means millions for the unscrupulous promoters and nothing for Belmont, has been engineered by that king of underhand manipulators, one no less unscrupulous than the very men to whom he would sell his town, David Kerr!”

There was horror in her tones and she held the paper from her as a thing unclean.

“Is this true?” she demanded imperiously.

“Not a word of it,” Judge Gilbert was quick to answer.

“Not you,” she turned to David Kerr. “Father, is it true?”

The boss of Belmont looked like some wounded wild animal brought to bay. He gazed with speechless rage at Joe Wright, and then looked at his daughter. She stood with arm outstretched to him, a mute but eloquent appeal for a denial. The big man shook himself, as if calling forth all his strength for a final effort, and straightened himself to his full height. Looking her squarely in the eye he replied firmly:

“No, Gloria, it ain't true.”

The sigh she gave as her arm dropped to her side seemed to be a prayer of thanksgiving that he had come through the ordeal unscathed. She knew he would, but she wanted the words of denial from his own lips. Her next order showed every one that she was the daughter of David Kerr.

“Then punish the man who published the lie.”

Wright's heart seemed to stop beating as he heard the words that had in them all the finality of a funeral bell.

Kerr had his own reasons for wishing to minimize the matter. Joe Wright he would willingly, gladly have sacrificed, but he did not know how it would react on Gloria. He could find means to make the newspaper man suffer without Gloria being cognizant of the fact.

“That's just Western politics,” the boss tried to pass it off lightly. “Don't let that bother you.”

“He must be punished, I say.” Her indignation knew no bounds. “Would you let it go unchallenged that I am the daughter of such a man?”

Kerr was aroused by her spirited manner. It would be necessary, he

“The first thing to do was to get Gloria away from the office. For several days she had been staying with Mrs. Hayes, and thither she was now taken. By Dr. Hayes' order she was put at once to bed, and under the influence of an opiate, she was soon asleep. Dr. Hayes came downstairs and announced to Kerr, who was savagely pacing back and forth in the drawing room, that his daughter was suffering from a great nervous shock. He also said that she would probably sleep for several hours.

“It ain't no use for me to stay here

then,” the boss declared. “If you want me you can get me by telephone at my office or Gilbert's or at the club rooms.”

“Even if she asks for you,” said the doctor. “I think it best for you to stay away until her nerves are quieter.”

As there was nothing further the two men could do, they walked downtown together, leaving Mrs. Hayes to watch over Gloria.

It was nine o'clock before the girl opened her eyes. Dr. Hayes had been home to dinner and then gone out again. His wife was sitting in Gloria's room reading by a light which was carefully shaded so as not to annoy the sleeper. She had turned several pages of her book with a feeling that her patient was now fully awake before she looked up to see if her belief was justified. Gloria was gazing vacantly at the ceiling.

Dinner Stories

Conversing with a coterie of friends recently, Dr. William Osler told of the rather embarrassing position in which a well-known physician recently placed himself.

The physician referred to by Dr. Osler was a guest at a social affair, and at dinner was placed beside an elderly lady whom he had not previously met. Almost at once the lady who was inclined to garrulity, began to talk.

“By the way, doctor,” she smilingly remarked, “ought I to call you doctor or professor?”

“You may call me what you please, madame,” was the physician's quick reply. “I am frank enough to admit, however, that some of my friends call me an old fool.”

“Did I hear you all say that as soon as de president was hit, vid dat bluet he went somewhere an' got eggs raised?”

There is an old mammy cooking for a Philadelphia family who has been greatly exercised over the soaring price of eggs.

It was during the time of excitement caused by Schrank's bullet fired at the ex-president that Aunt Calline's mistress came into the kitchen one day in time to hear the old woman mumble:

“Ef hit hadn't 'a' been fo' dat Roosevelt de price of 'em wouldn't 'a' gone up no higher!”

“What are you talking about, Aunt Calline?” inquired her mistress. “Didn't I hear you all say dat as soon as de president was hit, vid dat bluet he went somewhere an' got eggs raised?”

For The Weak and Nervous. Tired-out, weak, nervous men and women would feel ambitious, energetic, full of life and always have a good appetite if they would do the sensible thing for health—take Electric Bitters. Nothing better for the stomach, liver or kidneys. Thousands say they owe their lives to this wonderful home remedy. Mrs. O. Rhineault, of Vestal Center, N. Y., says: “I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest of gifts. I can never forget what it has done for me. Get a bottle yourself and see what a difference it will make in your health. Only 50c and $1.00. Recommended by People's Drug Co.”

then,” the boss declared. “If you want me you can get me by telephone at my office or Gilbert's or at the club rooms.”

A COLONIAL HOUSE—NO. 215. SIZE 48x32 FEET.

This residence is of the pure type of colonial architecture, and is carried out in wide siding painted white, and the roof is, in this case, of black slate. The entire design has been made on the simplest lines, which has resulted in supreme dignity and good character.

The floor plans have rooms all of ample size, and, being of the center hall type, open up these rooms to each other in the magnificent manner that only this type of plan affords. The kitchen has access to the front door without passing through any rooms and has a convenient arrangement of kitchen accessories, together with the ice room and porch, both off the kitchen.

The sun room, at the end of the house, is reached from the living room through French doors at each side of the fireplace and is arranged to be inclosed with screens or glass. The entrance on the front has been made as simple as possible and in keeping with the general outline of the house. The second floor provides for four bedrooms and bath and is reached by a stairway from the hall and from the kitchen in combination. The rear bedroom has a sleeping porch and closet over the kitchen porch. Linen closets are conveniently placed near the bathroom and a clothes chute at the door of the bathroom extends to the basement.

A house of this size, design and equipment would cost about $7000 under average building conditions.
